ALPHA ZETA FAMILY MATTERS

A history of Alpha Zeta's most famous family

Four Generations of Seipts have made their way through AZ

Of the acres and acres of farmland that stretch across Eastern Pennsylvania's flat, fertile expanse, hundreds have been nurtured by Alpha Zeta's most famous family.

The Seipts have toiled in the dirt, labored in the crop fields and tended to livestock for generations – four of which honed their skills as members of Alpha Zeta's Morrill Chapter. It's a pedigree that has been respected and revered by each Seipt that's found his way past the proud white colonnades and through the doors of the stately red brick house on Burrowes St.

"Nine of us have gone through the fraternity house," Fred Seipt ('56) says, remembering stories his father Wilbur ('24) would tell about the early days of AZ and how they influenced his own decision to pledge. "My dad was all Penn State. My brother and I both, I don't think we had any other choices. But I was happy that I joined Alpha Zeta."

Fred and his older brother Don ('50) raised third-generation Alpha Zetans. Fred's sons – Vernon ('79), Matthew ('81) and Bill ('88) – along with Don's son – Doug ('80) – all took early interests in agriculture growing up on their fathers' farms. They made easy calls to join AZ after following in their grandfather Wilbur's footsteps.

"It was certainly not a requirement in the family," Vernon says with a laugh. "But I think my predecessors had a high opinion of Alpha Zeta having been members and coming through that part of the Greek system. It was an easy decision for me."

So was his decision to return home to help Fred after his graduation from Penn State. Like Vernon, his younger brothers Matthew and Bill helped Fred grow the family business – Freddy Hill Farms in Lansdale.

What started out as a dairy farm derived from Wilbur's Towamencin Farm, quickly became a destination spot for homemade ice cream. Batting cages, two miniature golf courses, a pro shop, driving range and miniature zoo are all under the Freddy Hill Farms umbrella today.

And it's that time of year when Fred and his sons get busy with cornstalk mazes, pumpkin patch tours and hayrides, too.

Place a call to Freddy Hill Farms and whoever answers will tell you – "One of the Seipt boys is around here somewhere."

"It's developed into so much more," Fred says, attributing his affable management style to his time in Alpha Zeta. "The camaraderie at the time, it's all part of fraternity life and I think there are good things to be said about it. I'm happy to have been there and gone through that and obviously my three sons were probably influenced by me a little bit, what can I say?"

Don proudly lists himself as a "retired dairy farmer" on his Facebook profile. Doug spends his days doing what his dad and granddad did,

CHAPTER HOUSE UPDATES

Be a part of Alpha Zeta's lasting history: Engrave your name on the AZ front walkway!

Alpha Zeta Corporation Board Vice President and Furnishings Chair Dan Frechen led an effort this summer to give the Alpha Zeta house a facelift, as part of the ongoing effort preparing for the Centennial Celebration on April 23, 2016.

Brother Frechen's project included replacing the front walkway and landing with compressed concrete pavers, updating the brick walls in front of the house and renovating the porch stairs. What's most exciting about this project is that he's offering you the chance to participate!

Alumni can purchase a commemorative paver to have engraved and featured as part of the front walkway. Read on for different options to this offering. Place your order by January 29, 2016 in order to take advantage of these prices. After that date, pavers will still be available for purchase with an additional $35 installation fee.

Please use the included order form to place your order or you can go to www.alphazetapsu.2stayconnected.com/walkway for a Q&A and more information!

too. His son Tim ('13) recently rejoined the family business in Easton after becoming the second fourth-generation Alpha Zetan from the Seipt Family, the first being his cousin, Bryant Hlavaty ('04).

"Alpha Zeta has been a home to my family for generations," Tim said in his senior profile. "I was ... privileged to call it home, and now it will forever be my home. I knew that the connections and the friendships that were made at AZ will last a lifetime. AZ made my college career one that I will never forget, and for that, I couldn't be more grateful."

Although Fred says he's unsure why the family patriarch Wilbur joined AZ, his reasons were simple. Wilbur used to tell stories about his time in the fraternity and would go visit friends from his college days.

When Fred got to Penn State in the early 50's, he was armed with his dad's fond memories and quickly joined a handful of ag clubs and decided easily on a major.

"They called it dairy husbandry then, now it's dairy science," he says.

Vernon did the same, finding out early he had a passion for judging events as a member of the dairy science club. He insists he kept an open mind and looked at other ag groups – notably DTS and – but settled on Alpha Zeta after meeting a few brothers.

"I think AZ was a nice alternative certainly to dorm life," Vernon says. "And I got to intermix and intermingle with like-minded ag majors, which in the dorms, you wouldn't have necessarily had those around. You might've come across one or two on your way by on your floor or in your building, but I think AZ also helped out with leadership development."

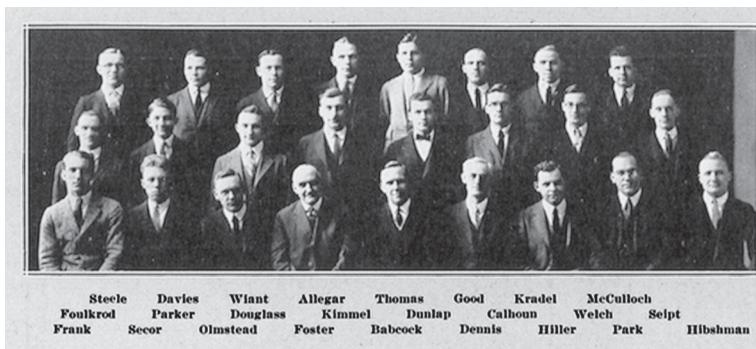

Vernon was president of AZ for a year and has continued to keep tabs on his fellow Alpha Zetans. Fred, now 81, doesn't use his season football tickets as much as he used to but Vernon, Matthew, Bill and their families do.

They've all visited the house within the last decade and have made charitable gifts of more than $3,000 to help support Alpha Zeta initiatives, but Fred is quick to say he'd like to get back more often.

He might have another reason to in the near future as a Seipt cousin is currently pledging AZ, continuing the legacy Wilbur began and eight others kept going.

"I hope to get up this fall for Michigan but I don't know if it's going to work or not," Fred says.

"I thought fraternity life was great. And it was. It turned out to be a wonderful experience."

ALPHA ZETA SCHOLARSHIP RECIPIENTS

A Handful Of Alpha Zetans Garnered Scholarships, Find out More About These Impressive Students!

The Alpha Zeta Corporation Board is pleased to recognize several outstanding Alpha Zetans, who received scholarship funds for the 2015-16 school year. This year's selection committee was headed by Scholarship Chair Joe Leslie.

Students receiving the Dr. David A. Morrow III Alpha Zeta Fraternity Scholarship are Michelle Hartzell, Stephen Smith and Greyson Smith.

We got a chance to catch up with Michelle and Stephen about receiving the scholarships and what they mean to them.

Michelle Hartzell

Michelle Hartzell
Hometown: Slippery Rock, Pa.
Major: Animal Sciences
Future Plans: I am planning to pursue a career in human medicine.

Michelle says: "I am very honored to be a recipient of an Alpha Zeta scholarship," Michelle says. "Thank you to our alumni for their generous donation to offset the cost of college education."

Stephen Smith

Stephen Smith
Hometown: Honesdale, Pa.
Major: Animal Science
Future Plans: I want to find a job as a dairy herdsman after I graduate. I would eventually like to own and operate my own dairy and creamery set-up.

Stephen says: "This scholarship helps makes affording to go to school so much easier," Stephen says. "Without the amazing alumni Alpha Zeta has, we wouldn't have this great scholarship opportunity. I really appreciate all that our alumni do for us."

Students receiving the Alpha Zeta Lindley and Dorothy Dennis Memorial Award are Cara Trotter and William Ziemendorf. Here's some more about these noteworthy students:

Cara Trotter

Cara Trotter
Hometown: Enon Valley, Pa.
Major: Animal Science, Business Option
Future Plans: After graduation I would like to work for a dairy breed organization or in the marketing aspect in the ag industry. After working in the industry for a while, I would like to return to my family's dairy farm, Trotacre Farm.

Cara says: "Thank you for giving me the opportunity to receive the Lindley and Dorothy Dennis Memorial Scholarship," Cara says. "I greatly appreciate the monetary award towards my education. I am proud to be a recipient of this scholarship, as well as a new member of the fraternity."

William Ziemendorf

William Ziemendorf
Hometown: Sanborn, N.Y.
Major: Plant Science major, AGBM minor, Argonomy Minor
Future Plans: To pursue a sales career in the field of agronomy

William says: "This scholarship has helped me to fulfill my degree and my dream to work in the field of ag," Will says. "The support system, both through alumni and scholarships that the house has offered, has made my college experience."

Alli Hartman and Mike Rush received the Alpha Zeta Corporation Scholarship award. We caught up with Alli about the honor.

Alli Harman

Alli Hartman
Hometown: Turbotville, Pa.
Major: Public Relations
Future Plans: To work for an agricultural communications agency on public relations and communications initiatives for clients across all parts of the food system

Alli says: "Joining Alpha Zeta while at Penn State has been a wonderful way for me to network with the strong Morrill Chapter alumni base and stay connected to the College of Agricultural Sciences while earning my degree in communications," Alli says. "My AZ connections have resulted in multiple ag comm internships during my time at school, giving me great experience within the industry. I am very grateful to the Morrill alumni who donate generously to the scholarship fund. This scholarship will be a huge help as I finish up my final semesters at Penn State."

Anna Brown, the widow of Morris Brown had established a scholarship in honor of her late husband. These funds will be managed by the Corporation Board. This year's recipient of the Morris Brown award is Chris Toevs.

ANNUAL FUND / HONOR ROLL

Can We Count on Your Gift This Year?

We want to take another opportunity to thank all the Alpha Zetans who gave to our annual fund this past year. Our giving year ended and we are happy to report that many of you answered the call to give back to the organization that meant – and continues to mean – so much to all of us.

Annual funds are crucial to the well-being of fraternity chapters nationwide.

Your gifts help us:

- Host alumni events and maintain a consistent communications program to keep our members connected
- Fund important house projects to ensure the house remains in good shape
- Make the Alpha Zeta experience available for future Penn State students

If you'd like to make a gift to the current annual fund, which began on Sept. 1, and help perpetuate and strengthen our group, ensuring the Alpha Zeta experience is available to future Penn State students. Each gift makes a difference!

Thanks again to our generous donors from this past year! Get your name on this list by donating today!
